"GIVE ME A GUN"

(Booth Tarkington, United States Novelist)

"Last spring quite suddenly all over the United States, east and west and south and north, within the space of a few weeks, there swept a universal and virtually unanimous demand. The country demanded what it hadn't dreamed previously of wanting and would bitterly have denounced anybody for recommending — to be armed on a scale that hadn't been contemplated before except in actual warfare.

"That is, the country was like a man worried over business, obstinately absorbed in his business, who suddenly hears in his office of something that scares the life out of him; he screams for a gun. The United States was frightened clear through because everybody with either intelligence or intuition knew that the country was in danger.

"In danger of what? In danger of losing the British Navy. That is the fact, and there's no getting away from it. This country was scared because it was in danger of losing the defence of the British Navy. The country suddenly woke up to the strange fact that it was an unarmed country relying on the British Navy for protection, even possibly for existence. The country's information or intuition told it this, clearly, at the time when apparently the British Navy with the whole British Empire was in danger of being swept into the hands of the enemy; and therefore the country screamed, 'Give me a gun, and quickly!'

"Now in the months since then the British Navy, which, with the R. A. F., defends the British Empire, has demonstrated that it is still alive and pretty capable. Gradually, on that account (and please note the significance of the fact that it is on that account) we're less scared; we've become more confident and a great many people, lulled by a lull in the storm, so to speak, have largely recovered from the jitters. Instead of screaming, 'Give me a gun!' they're now saying, 'I think I'd better spend a lot of money having a gun made; but really, I don't depend on anybody. I'm strong, I'm independent. My life and business don't hang on the courage, power and equipment of anybody else. I don't see why we want to risk anything by helping Britain much.'

"That's all, Senator. I'm merely suggesting that we haven't yet got a very good gun ourselves."

RED CROSS NEWS

The Canadian Nurses Association has appointed Miss Eileen Flanagan to serve in an advisory capacity to the Auxiliary Nursing Service of the Red Cross Women's Voluntary Service Corps, Mrs. H. P. Plumptre, Corps National commandant, announced yesterday. Miss Flanagan, who has also been elected a member of the national executive of the W. V. S. C., is head of the Neurological Department of the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal.

Appointment of Mrs. Ernest P. Lee as national commandant of the Food Administration Service was also announced. Mrs. Lee is a graduate of the school of Household Science, University of Toronto. The food Administration Service is the final section of the W. V. S. C. and it aims to train women across Canada in the purchasing, preparation and distribution of food for national emergencies, military hospitals, or army camps.

"This section is indebted to many dietitians across the Dominion and to the Nutrition Council of Toronto for assistance in organizing," Mrs. Plumptre said. "Pending the announcement by the Government of a definite policy regarding the employment of women in the forces, the Red Cross is enlisting women in its Voluntary Service Corps and is training them for service either with the Red Cross, the Government or other patriotic services."

ROUND ABOUT TOWN

With Sunday came the formation of a new foursome complete with "twenty twos". Was it really just for the pleasure of hunting, or was there some other reason?

We wonder why our jolly old school janitor looks so worn out and weary lately? Could it be that the preparations for the H.S. frolic are getting him down?

How does it happen that our invitation cards are being received so late? One of the Young-town beaux reports having received one the other day. Well, at any rate, she'll be sure of a partner.

Judging by all reports, the Young-town dance was a great success. Several of our young men were enjoying themselves, but their expressions changed when the girl friend arrived unexpectedly. Brrrrr!

BOY SCOUT TROOP HERE

Through the courtesy of the Special Areas Board, the Scouts will establish themselves in the old Colborne Municipal Office and the boys have set to work with a will, renovating the building preparing it for a Scout Hall. As the maintenance of the building and general expenses are to fall on the boys' shoulders, they have decided to use the front portion of the Hall as an "Exchange" for Used Merchandise.

WHAT HAVE YOU TO SELL

The Scouts will shortly conduct a canvas of the Village for used and discarded furniture, tools, stoves, toys, or anything of resale value. The boys have everything but the ready cash but immediately any article is sold, the party, who placed the article for disposal, with the Scouts, will be paid.

We ask all the Villagers to co-operate wholeheartedly, with the Scouts, and give them some real support in their undertaking.

We Stand On Guard

With the intensification of warfare on the European continent and over Britain, warnings appearing frequently in the daily press, that Hitler is pursuing his policy of conquest on this continent by his underground methods of subversive propaganda designed to "soften up" the people in the hope first of rendering them indifferent and apathetic and later openly militant, if and when the time comes for overt acts, cannot be disregarded.

That this insidious and dangerous policy of paving the way for Nazi armed forces has proved successful everywhere in Europe except in Great Britain and Greece has been amply demonstrated that the people of Canada and the United States cannot afford to be blind to its possibilities here, unless they are continually on the alert to detect the evil wherever it ripples in underground channels indicate its presence, to reveal its existence wherever and whenever it is detected and to "smoke out the Nazis" in their lairs.

This does not mean that everyone whose native tongue is continental European is to be regarded as suspect. On the contrary, thousands of them, the great majority are as loyal to the British cause as is the entire Anglo-Saxon world, but there is a small minority among them who are ready and willing to serve the Nazi doctrine as there are a few Quislings even among the Anglo-Saxons. For our own protection, it is the duty of all of us, to bring to the attention of the proper authorities, the few who are indulging in nefarious practices designed to undermine our war effort, whether, it be by word or deed. Constituted authority can be relied upon to take whatever steps may be necessary to render their machinations harmless.

A Great Loyal Body

As already stated, the vast body of Canadians of non-British origin in Western Canada are loyal to the cause of democracy to the core and disavow Nazism, Fascism, Communism and all other doctrines which constitute a threat to the continued existence of liberty and freedom of the individual.

And why wouldn't they? For did they not come to this country because they espoused the doctrines of freedom and liberty, because they wanted to be assured of their personal right to think and speak and worship as they chose and to take advantage of all the opportunities and privileges afforded by a democratic regime?

If proof were needed as to where the great rank and file of these new Canadians stand on the great issues which are now being fought out, it is to be found in their own language newspapers published in this country and enjoying wide circulation among them. A few extracts from some of them indicates clearly what the great majority think about the issues of the war and the example which is being set by their leaders.

For example, the "Nya Svenska Pressen" (The Swedish Press), Vancouver says:

"We believe that Canada has done well. But the sooner that we realize that we must do better, and that it is our struggle as much as that of the people of Great Britain, the better it will be for our cause. We also believe that the Swedish people in Canada are as loyal to this cause as any national group. Hundreds of our men and boys have joined the service and we believe our people generally are giving their fullest support in other ways."

Another from "Narodna Gazeta" (People's Gazette), Ukrainian weekly published in Winnipeg:

"Farmers and workers cannot remain passive in the struggle. Working people are most vitally interested, because within the British democratic system they have a chance to achieve a better life and greater prosperity, to struggle by legal means for their rights and to work toward creation of a new society of toilers, without exploitation and force. Workers and farmers of Canada must stand, together with the British working classes, firmly and unswervingly on the defensive positions of our country. And this must be manifested by deeds and not by words."

The Croatian Voice, "Hrvatski Glas," published in Winnipeg makes the following appeal to its people:

"We, Canadian Croats, Serbs and Slovenes must prove to our new homeland in the current campaign that we fully appreciate its hospitality and the freedom which we have found here. . . The salvation of the whole world depends on a victory of Great Britain and of democracy in general."

For A Greater Faith

Nor is this sentiment confined to people from countries who might be expected to be Allies if they had had the chance, as the following extract from an editorial in "Der Nordwesten," German language weekly published in Winnipeg, demonstrates:

"First and foremost, let all of us who have taken upon ourselves the privileges and responsibilities of Canadian citizenship fully realize that whatever ties of kinship and sentiment we may have with other lands, that Canada must claim our first allegiance. This will make it more difficult for undesirable elements to establish themselves among us. It will also help else, namely a greater faith in Canada and a much stronger unity of ideals to bring about what the people in this country need more than anything and purpose in making it a still greater and honored nation within the folds of the British Empire. . . Let us be ready to put into deeds and action the words of the National Anthem of our Dominion: 'O Canada, we stand on guard for thee.'"

The Canadian Legion

Good Work Being Done By Organization Allowing Enlisted Men

More than 7,000 members of the Veterans' Guard of Canada on duty at internment camps are enjoying entertainment, recreation, and many types of personal comforts provided free by the Canadian Legion.

In most cases isolated from urban centres and subjected to all kinds of bad weather, these old soldiers of 1914-18 who have volunteered to guard the camps housing prisoners of war look to their comrades for the facilities that will help offset discomfort and monotony.

The Legion, which also carries on auxiliary services work on behalf of the navy, army and air force at home and in the Old Country, has supplied hundreds of thousands of sheets of free notepaper and envelopes, books, magazines, sports equipment and, with the assistance of the Legion branches, radios and pianos. These comforts are available at all times in recreation rooms.

Legion officers have also rendered assistance to members of the Guard in adjusting private and domestic problems which the men could not attend to. In many instances, wives and families have been spared embarrassment and financial distress through the Legion's help.

This type of work is being carried out by all of Canada's auxiliary war services organizations for enlisted men. The money necessary to continue such efforts is provided by the public.

The Legion as well as the I.O.B.E. in the four western provinces, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A., are making a joint nationwide appeal for $5,500,000 to ensure continuance of their efforts in Canada and overseas. The appeal is under the auspices of the Governor-General and the Princess Alice and will be the only national campaign for the men in uniform to be held in 1941.

Youth Training

Average Graduation Of About 4,000 Each Month

Confidence the objective of 50,000 graduates of vocational schools and 50,000 graduates of plant schools for jobs in war industry this year will be attained was expressed in the House of Commons by Labor Minister McLarty.

He said the war emergency training programme was a joint provincial-dominion undertaking based on the framework of the pre-war youth training plan.

Mr. McLarty said present enrolment in the vocational schools indicated an average graduation of about 4,000 each month. The output could be expanded as need arose and it was expected it would be larger during the summer months when high school students were on vacation.

It was difficult to get figures for the plant schools, said the minister, because the government contributed nothing to them. They were the responsibility of the industries concerned with trained men to fill their own requirements.

Air Training Plan

U.S. Has Furnished Many Trained Aviators For Instruction

In development of air training, Canada was fortunate in her proximity to the United States which had furnished from 200 to 400 trained aviators for instruction and ferrying tasks, the air minister, Hon. G. Power said in the House of Commons.

This had been an important factor in the speedy development of training facilities.

In addition to supplying trained men from Canada's air force the United States had produced from seven to 10 per cent of students in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Canadians—and this listing included the American students as well—made up 90 per cent of the pupils, the other 10 per cent coming from the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand.

Total Canadian air force personnel of all kinds in Canada at the moment was 3,400 officers and 42,732 airmen, the equivalent, Mr. Power said, of three infantry divisions.

Capture Lost Seal

Long-lost Oscar, a 175-pound seal, was captured after almost nine years' freedom in the warm waters of the Gulf Stream. Oscar hopped aboard a small fishing boat near Ragged Key, 12 miles south of Miami, Florida, enjoyed a mess of fish and was lassoed by his hosts. At the aquarium, the seal was identified by Capt. Newton Knowles, who said Oscar escaped soon after being brought from Labrador nine years ago.

Powerful Tanks

Holling Off The Assembly Line In Britain

Tanks like those that drove the Italians from Eastern Libya are rolling off an assembly line in Britain.

They are so fast, powerful and ugly that a demonstration of what they can do is terrifying.

They are so heavily armored that only a heavy calibre shell can stop them. It is not permitted to give specifications, but it can be said that they are faster than most 1930 model American automobiles. (Medium-priced 1930 automobiles could hit 75 miles an hour.)

Newspapermen stood in a reviewing stand and watched a demonstration. There was no firing, but the sight of that block of steel bearing down on us with the speed of a train, its tractors kicking up mud, motor roaring and cannon and machine-guns pointed at our heads, made us step back, even though we knew we were safe.

Directly in front of the stand the demonstrating tank dug its treads into the cinders, threw up a cloud of dust and came to a halt within a distance no greater than the tank's length.

In these tanks the power comes from Liberty type motors, the same type used in airplanes in the world war.

SELECTED RECIPES

EMERGENCY FRUIT SALAD

1 package Orange Jell-O
1 pint hot water
1 orange, sections freed from membranes
1 banana, sliced
Dissolve Jell-O in hot water. Pour about 1/3 of Jell-O into mild. Chill until firm. Chill remaining Jell-O until slightly thickened. Fold in orange sections and banana. Turn into mold over firm Jell-O layer. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise for salad, or serve plain or with whipped cream for dessert. Serves six.

PEANUT BUTTER MACAROONS

2 egg whites
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
1/2 cup peanut butter
2 cups Kellogg's rice krispies
Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold in sugar, almond extract and peanut butter. Add rice krispies, stirring only enough to combine. Drop from teaspoon onto well greased and baking sheet; bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 20 minutes. Yield: 1 1/2 dozen macaroons (2 1/2 inches in diameter).

Contrasts Are Ugly

Wealthy Chinese Spend Million On Balls While Poor Starve

China's press is depicting in ugly colors the sharp contrast between rich and poor in Shanghai. One of the stories concerns the festivities of Christmas eve. All Chinese ballrooms were crowded with Chinese pleasure seekers and the incomes of the ballrooms on that night were said to be well over $1,000,000. On the same night, 82 bodies were picked up from streets by the Shanghai Public Benevolent Cemetery. Among the bodies picked up on Christmas eve, only 23 were those of adults. On Christmas Day, 32 dead adults and 47 dead children were collected.

Cleaning Up The Flower Garden

Some Timely Suggestions For Preparing The Garden This Spring

As soon as the snow has melted and the ground is beginning to dry, work can start in the garden. If the tops of the perennials were not cut off in ball they should now be removed and any branches or other trash that has collected on the beds should be carefully raked off. If a mulch of manure was used in fall, the fine part of the material can be dug in to add humus to the soil. At this time an application of a commercial fertilizer with the formula 4-8-10 can be scattered on the surface and dug in, advises Miss Isabella Preston, Division of Horticulture, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Any broken or damaged branches should be removed from shrubs and trees, being careful to make a clean cut and not to leave ugly stubs on the trees. Late blooming shrubs can be pruned at this time.

In the rose garden it is a mistake to remove the protecting material all at once. If boards (or brush) were laid over the mulch they should be removed first and a fork thrust into the straw or leaves in order to lift them a little so that air can get in. In a week or so if the weather is suitable the top layer of straw can be removed and the remainder taken off gradually. If the nights are very cold and the days dry and sunny the mound of earth should be left over the lower part of the rose bush until the soil is beginning to warm up and the roots are waking up from the winter sleep. The dry wind and hot sun frequently damage the stems by drying before the roots are sufficiently active to supply the moisture necessary to keep them in good condition.

Famous Phrase

Prime Minister Churchill's Statement

Given New Variation
Prime Minister Churchill's famous phrase about the civilian population and the Royal Air Force—"Never have so many owed so much to so few"—is being extensively paraphrased, Columbia Broadcasting system reported from London.

One example that has found its way into print, CBS reported, is the form Hitler's tribute would take to the Italian forces:

"Never have so many done so little in such a long time."

Another variation cited was in connection with the Balkan situation:

"Never have there been so many who knew so little about so much."

Unanimous Response

When Winston Churchill became Britain's Prime Minister last May, the Commons in a confidence vote supported him 381 to 0. In a recent week he sought, for the first time since then, another vote of confidence. He got it. There was a unanimous shout of "Yes."

Want Balkan Crops

One reason why Germany and Italy desire to win their Balkan victories without fighting is that they hope to secure the crops of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Rumania, which might be difficult if fighting began.

Britain's Food Needs

Must Be Met In Great Part By Her Farmers

Robert Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, said that "unless British farmers pull their weight we might next winter hear a child say 'I'm hungry,'" the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

Mr. Hudson, in announcing that no farmers will be called up for military service until after the harvest, said that "we must, by hook or by crook, produce every ounce of food possible although less and less imported seedling stuffs are available."

In view of the importance of food production, the Minister of Labor and National Service, Ernest Bevin, had agreed that farmers should not be called up.

"Agriculture is in the very front line of our defence," the Minister said. "As the war spreads the demands on our shipping must become more and more severe."

"The soil has become the nation's might and it must be made to produce food for man and beast."

Words Of Inspiration

A Thought A Day For A People Who Are At War

"I am not saying that the world does not need a new or a changed order. But it does not want an order made by a people who spit on religion and encourage treachery in the home, and commit torture, and bring about unnecessary death—a new order based on the oldest fallacies and cruelties known to man."—Sir Gerald Campbell, Minister of the British Embassy at Washington.

Russia claims that the coldest place in the world is Ol-Melon, in Siberia, where water thrown from a bucket out of a first-floor window is said to freeze before it reaches the ground.

DAUGHTER OF DESTINY

—BY—

Eleanor Atterbury Colton

CHAPTER I

"Are you Miss Devona Raebourne?" Started, Devona turned, gave a pair of the bluest eyes she'd ever seen. "Why—yes, I am."

The tall young man studied her deliberately. "Yes, of course. Same beautiful big eyes. Same perfect mouth. Your mother—over again—brunette version. I should have known."

Devona, still perched on the battered steamer trunk where she'd been marooned for the last anxious hour, experimented with a smile. "Are you Los Angeles, official greeter or is flattering strange women just a pernicious habit?"

He grinned then and Devona felt her heart hesitate.

"No—neither. But if every ocean-rupting something? Couldn't I take a train or—"

He shrugged that aside. "I'm told to meet a little schoolgirl who'll cling, terrified, to my hand. 'Instead—' He stared at her again frankly. 'I find you.'"

Devona laughed, glanced around the huge dock, faintly emptying now. "But I am terrified." Or she had been a moment ago!

Dale's blue glance travelled coolly from the jaunty feather on her hat to the tips of her trim suede pumps. "Yes, you look it! I'm the one that should be terrified."

Her glance faltered, went down defeated while she fumbled for some bright retort. After all, 14 years in boarding schools or gray-walled convents, or crude mining camps with her engineer father hadn't prepared her for—well, this, for instance. And she wanted so much that this charming envoy from her mother's smart world shouldn't guess she was only a schoolgirl in disguise. Expensive disguise it had been, too. From a smart shop in Shanghai's International Quarter.

"Hope we can rush your luggage through," Dale said as they followed a darky porter. "You wait here. I'll dig up an inspector."

Devona watched him stride off and wondered what it was about him that made her think of Norse Vikings and valiant sailing ships and Valhalla. He wasn't exactly handsome but his smile and the clear, blue flame of his eyes made you forget that. And his nice voice. Voices mattered. She'd learned that in the out-of-the-way corners of the world where language doesn't matter and you detected friend or enemy from the shadows in his voice. There were no shadows in Dale's deep tones.

Something in his manner commanded good service, too. The inspection was brief, and in another moment Dale was tipping a porter, leading Devona to a smart blue coupe at the curbing just outside the huge gray building marked Pier 29.

"I told Vava we'd try to make Palm Springs for dinner," he said as he guided the powerful car into the stream of traffic threading toward the city. "She's taken a place out there for the winter, you know."

Devona didn't know, but she nodded. There was so much she didn't know about her beautiful actress mother. But, she hugged the thought ago I thought she was the most beautiful woman I'd ever seen." Then, abruptly as they waited for a traffic light. "Did anyone ever tell you your own face would launch a couple of fleets?"

Flushing, Devona hid her embarrassment behind a laugh. "You look like your mother." Dad had told her often. And "if anything ever happens to me, go to Vava. She'll love you."

The traffic light changed and the blue coupe moved swiftly ahead.

"She's made a marvellous success of her career, hasn't she?" Devona persisted.

"On the stage, yes. She won't have anything to do with movies, you know. Cameras are too cold, she says. She wants audience response. I guess she could have had some pretty sweet contracts, too."

"That sounds like her," Devona smiled. "It was never money that mattered, Dad said."

She felt Dale's glance flick across her face. "No?"

"Oh, no. Just so long as she could be in the theatre—"

"How come you don't hate her?" he interrupted suddenly.

"Hate her?"

"She turned you out, didn't she, when you were just a baby?"

"Oh, it wasn't like that," Devona defended her instantly. "She had to give us up—for her art. I went with Daddy so I wouldn't be in the way and because Daddy needed me."

"Oh, I see." His smile had a strange little twist.

Obviously he didn't see, and that aroused a nagging little fear that had nipped the hem of her mind for days—ever since she'd sent that cable from Bombay. What if her mother didn't want her? What if Devona shrugged aside that worry. Tense, overwrought from the shock of her father's sudden death, then the great sorrow had come with in the week in a blunt message telling of the explosion aboard a company launch and of her father's instant death.

But the great love—Sharply she caught back that thought. School-girl dreaming over a fortune teller's promises. How Dale would laugh if he could read her thoughts!

Right now, he was guiding the big car in toward the curbing, snapping off the motor.

VISITS HULL

The newly appointed minister from Canada, Mr. Leighton McCarthy, is shown leaving the office of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, after his first official visit since arriving in Washington.

threatening stagefright, "you make me sound like a side-show attraction."

Dale cocked an eyebrow at her. "You're an attraction, all right!" Then, almost as if he'd forgotten she was there. "That's going to make it tough."

"Why? Is it against the rules to be attractive in Palm Springs?"

"No." He laughed at her. "But, it's—dangerous."

They were pushing through cross-town traffic and for awhile Dale gave his attention to lights and crossings.

Dangerous? Devona wondered. What was dangerous? And why did some instinct keep telling her something wasn't just right? Certainly it wasn't Dale Brasher. If some one had said make a wish, it couldn't have been granted more perfectly.

By careful, sidelong glances she discovered that it was his high cheek bones and clear, squarish jawline that gave the impression of bold strength. And the fanning sun-lines around his eyes, explained his dark, even tan.

Then suddenly Devona remembered what an old Indian fakir had pretended to read in the sand that happy day less than a month ago when she and her father had spent a holiday in Bombay.

"Daughter of a strange destiny," the fakir had muttered, peering at the white sand in his tray, "a great sorrow and a great love will enter your soul before another moon. And the love will be more cruel than the sorrow."

"Time out for lunch," he said, smiling at her. "And I hope you don't mind if I combine a little business with pleasure. After all, I'm just a poor, hard-working man, you know."

Devona glanced at the expensive, well-tailored suit, at the handsome leather brief case he pulled off the back shelf. "Not too hard-working," she teased, took his hand as he helped her out of the car.

Dale shook his head. "I'll be on relief pretty soon if this chap in here doesn't come through with some information that I'm after," he said, as they walked toward the ultra-Spanish white and red-tiled building where even in the noonday sunshine a neon sign blazed EL MEXICANO in red letters. "This isn't a swank place, but the atmosphere is supposed to be interesting and the chili is really good."

The chili and frijoles were excellent. And the "atmosphere" even better. Devona thought a little later, sipping excellent wine from a dark blue Mexican glass. Even the handsome manager who brought them thick, strong Mexican coffee himself, seemed chosen to match the "decor."

"Miss Raebourne, may I present Senor Macias," Dale introduced him. Senor Macias, looking as if he might have stepped out of a movie set or a romantic novel, bowed elegantly.

The horse seems to be finished in the army, but it requires a lot of imagination to picture anybody shouting "A tank, a tank, my kingdom for a tank!"

Fine English Tradition

A Letter To The New York Herald Tribune

I have read and heard a great many reasons why we should help the British, but it seems to me that the most important one is our love and admiration of England and all it means. The British Empire has always stood for civilization, and progress, and law and order. There is something of epic grandeur in just the name of England.

To me England means Queen Elizabeth and the glories and achievements of her age. It means dear old Dr. Johnson, and Charles Lamb working in the office of the East India Company by day and writing his essays at night with Mary. It means John Galsworthy and Soames Forsyte walking through the Green Park, and Val Darcie on his farm in South Africa. It means Rochester Towers, and Jane Austen, and Katharine Mansfield, with her delicate, imaginative stories.

It means A. Edward Newton browsing in the old bookshops of his beloved London—and it means the millions of brave people who are fighting and suffering that these things may be theirs and their children's forever.—Ruth Jerome Noble, New York.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

FLOWERS

Flowers are God's thoughts of beauty taking form to gladden mortal gaze.—Wilberforce.

In eastern lands they talk in flowers, and tell in a garland their loves and cares.—Percival.

Flowers are love's truest language.—Park Benjamin.

'Tis writ on earth, on leaf and flower: Love hath one race, one realm, one power.—Mary Baker Eddy.

There is not the least flower but seems to hold up its head and to look pleasantly, in the secret sense of the goodness of its heavenly Maker.—South.

Every rose is an autograph from the hand of God on His world about us. He has inscribed His thoughts in these marvellous hieroglyphs which sense and science have, these many thousand years, been seeking to understand.—Theodore Parker.

Tribute To Banting

Made The Greatest Contribution To Medical Science In Canada

It is difficult to predict exactly the place Sir Frederick Banting will hold in medical history, but it will be a very high place indeed, for a man whose name is inseparably associated with the cure or alleviation of some particular disease, or some specific advance in surgery. Whenever diabetes and the insulin method is being discussed Banting's name will inevitably be recalled, as Jenner's is in connection with smallpox, Lister's with antiseptic surgery, Simpson's with chloroform and Ross' with malaria. Insulin treatment is not infallible—few treatments are—but it is certain that tens of thousands of people are alive to-day who would be dead if Banting had not discovered insulin just 20 years ago.

In him Canada has made her greatest contribution to medical science.—London Spectator.

To Help Talented People

Famous Singer Donates Her $10,000 Award For This Purpose

Marian Anderson, acclaimed as one of the world's ranking singers, has pledged to charity and education the $10,000 Edward A. Bok award conferred upon her recently.

The 33-year-old colored singer, a native of Philadelphia, was presented the award on the stage of the Academy of Music before a distinguished audience that cheered as she responded, "I realize the big and deep significance of the honor."

"The money," she said, "shall enable some poor, unfortunate, but nevertheless talented people to do something of which they have dreamed all their young lives."

The award was established in 1921 by Edward A. Bok for the person who has "performed an act or contributed to a service... calculated to advance the best interest of Philadelphia," each year.

ANYONE CAN EASILY PLAY THE POPULAR GAY GUITAR

Diagram Makes It Simple For You

After winter sports, how delightful to relax with a guitar and a song! The guitar almost plays itself after you've learned the trick of accompanying a tune. You easily teach yourself. Simple directions show how to read the diagrams for the chords used in accompaniments.

Just study the guitar diagram for the "Little Brown Jug"—shown in our picture. Such diagrams are given in all popular music.

The vertical lines are the five strings, the cross lines are the frets or metal bars on your guitar finger-board. Just press the fingers of your left hand on the strings where the dots indicate.

Then, with your right hand, pluck the same strings over the sound hole, including strings marked "O." Accompanying the tune, on the first beat play the first string of the chord alone, on the other beats play the other strings together.

A little practice and you'll be called the old maestro! Our 32-page instruction book explains the guitar in simple steps. Explaining technique, elements of music. Gives table of chords, seven popular tunes.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of "Easy Lessons in Guitar Playing" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

The following booklets are also available at 15c each:

Not A Besieged Fortress

Britain Open To Shipping And Navy Controls Traffic Lanes

It is customary to speak of the British Isles as a fortress under siege. In reality, however, the continent of Europe is more accurately described by that phrase in the opinion of J. W. T. Mason.

Great Britain is not besieged because it is open to shipping from the western world and the Orient. The European continent, however, is locked within itself, unable to maintain commercial intercourse with the rest of the world because of the British navy's control of the ocean traffic lanes.

Claims by Germany that British control of the seas has been destroyed can have been made only to stimulate home morale. There is not the slightest room for believing the axis can break down the British blockade under any future condition now foreseeable.

Certainly, as conditions exist today, the British navy has command of the sea and the axis is held within the continent of Europe, unable to break through to the outer world. With a speed-up of American shipbuilding for British account, Herr Hitler must have small hope that he can crush the British mercantile fleet.

Taking No Chances

They take no chances on anything or anybody that drops from the skies in Britain. A Canadian almanac, forced to land by parachute in rural England, was confronted by a busy farmer armed with a gun, behind him was the hired man with a huge cudgel, and bringing up the rear was the good housewife wielding an iron skillet. Hitler should heed this warning.

going liner deposits lovely cargo like this—then I'm all for the job." The blue eyes teased. "I'm Dale Brasher. Your mother's message didn't reach me until half an hour ago. She's held up with a rehearsal so—"

That smile again, and little laugh lines fanning around his eyes. "I'm to play stand-in, temporarily. That is, if it's O.K. with you."

"Of course. Thank you so much for bothering," Devona murmured. She should have known her mother would be too busy to meet her. Popular actresses didn't go around meeting boys. Still, disappointment pulled at her.

"No bother at all," Dale was saying. "I've played stand-in plenty of times but—never as parent. At that—" he scowled suddenly, "it's damned disconcerting."

Devona glanced up. "Am I inter-close, from now on that would be different. Of course, she'd loved vagabonding with Dad. She'd never regret a moment of it. But, and her lips trembled, now that he was gone she was lucky to have this new world to come home to.

"They're rehearsing the new play," Dale went on. "Going to try it in Hollywood before they take it out to New York."

"New York?" Devona smiled. Fourteen years ago she and her tall, prematurely-grayed father had sailed out of New York harbor to put an ocean between Douglas Raebourne and the woman he adored. Bitter quarrels, heartbreaking scenes, finally divorce—and still he'd never stopped loving her. He'd taught 5-year-old Devona to love her, too. "She's a beautiful woman, your mother," he'd say, studying her picture hungrily. "Some day when she's had enough of her play acting, she'll come back to us."

But she never had. The theatre claimed her, worshipped her, applauded her. And now Douglas Raebourne was dead. And—at long last—Devona was coming home.

"Tell me more about my mother," she begged eagerly. "Is she still very beautiful?"

Dale glanced at her, a strange little smile curving his nice mouth. "Well, until about fifteen minutes the long, lonely trip from India, she just wasn't herself yet. Relaxing now against the smooth wide sea, she watched the graces of the city slide past. Los Angeles was such a sprightly city, and so white and clean and sunny. No twisted narrow streets, no swarms of leprosy-looking beggars. This was home, and she loved it already.

"You know, you're going to be very much a surprise package," Dale interrupted her thoughts.

"Am I? Why?"

"Well, for one thing, none of us knew Vava had a daughter. Not many do yet."

The fears stirred ominously. Didn't you?"

"And when she did announce you, we expected a school kid. So—" His smile curved a little, "don't be surprised if people gasp when you walk in."

"Mercy," Devona laughed around

THE THUNDEROUS VOICE OF BRITAIN'S NAVY

Recent events in the Mediterranean have proved again the supreme power of Britain's Navy, and the brilliant co operation of naval forces played a great part in the defeat of the Italian armies in Libya. This picture shows a giant British battleship firing her secondary armament of six inch guns.

Sixty Years of Progress

Sixty years of faithful and valuable service to Canada form the background for the sixtieth anniversary of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in mid-February.

On February 15, 1881, the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald granted a charter for the building by a private company of a railway to the Pacific Coast. Two days later, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was organized on an official basis and a glorious new era of Canada's history had begun.

The Canada of 1881 was an infant country, its sparsely settled portions separated from each other by dense wilderness. Confederation itself was in danger because of lack of communication between provinces. Railway connection with British Columbia had been promised but in ten years the work accomplished had been negligible.

The story of the building of the transcontinental line can be summed up in the statement that it was completed in half the time called for in the charter, with a pitifully small subsidy considering what had been granted in other places, and in face of the most bitter of political opposition. Time and again the whole project, including every cent of the builders' personal fortunes, seemed lost. The growth of the Canadian Pacific Railway and of Canada represents sixty years of mutual co-operation, each aiding in the strength and prosperity.

In 1881, Canada was a country with 4,324,810 population, possessing total export trade of $83,944,701 and import trade of $90,488,329. Its field crops were worth $155,277,427, its dairying $22,743,939, and its manufactures $309,876,668. In the last year of record, Canada's estimated population was 11,315,000, exports totalled $1,172,954,000 and imports $1,081,950,000. Field crops were worth $651,228,000, dairying $217,716,829 and manufactures $3,337,681,958.

The Canadian Pacific Railway's growth in the same period has been equally amazing. There was practically nothing in 1881. Now the company has 17,103 miles of rail lines in Canada, 55 ocean, coastal and lake steamships, hotels with a total of 5,394 rooms as well as summer lodges, 1,767 locomotives and 82,714 pieces of rolling stock. Its property and equipment represent an investment of more than one billion dollars. Other facts of interest concerning the world's greatest transportation system are that it operated 376,000 direct miles of telegraph line last year and carries 129,000 passengers across the Atlantic in a normal year. In 1940 the Canadian Pacific rail services carried nearly eight million passengers a total of more than 924 million passenger miles, in addition to transporting approximately 37 million tons of freight representing more than sixteen billion too miles. During last year the company paid out in taxes more than nine million dollars and, since incorporation, a total of approximately 172 million dollars. The gross earnings in 1940 totalled $170,964,000, every dollar of which represented a unit of service to the Dominion and the Empire.

The illustrations above are symbolic of 60 years of progress and show an early stage coach which was more romantic than comfortable; the arrival of the first transcontinental train at the Pacific Coast on July 4, 1886, and the modern transcontinental train, "The Dominion."

SKIING POPULAR
AT JASPER

As skiing becomes increasingly popular on this continent there is a marked tendency towards ski mountaineering, that is, following alpine terrain over a series of high camps and no more suitable country could be found for this type of skiing than Jasper National Park in the Canadian Rockies, according to R. Creelman, passenger manager, Canadian National Railways. "To meet this demand, routes have been established which centre around Maligne Lake, affording long and short trips with accommodation in comfortable chalets," he said.

There has been a mistaken idea that high-country skiing is for the expert only, stated Mr. Creelman, but the truth is that the alps make for safer skiing as there are no obstacles. There are tremendous stretches of open country offering every kind of skiing and every type of terrain. "That might sound as though the skier has to climb for a couple of hours or more each day to get his skiing," stated Mr. Creelman, "but that, too, is a mistaken idea about Canadian Rockies skiing."

"Consider Trappers' Valley, for instance," he said. "Our guides this winter will take the skiers off the train at Jasper around 2 p.m. and have them into Maligne Lake chalet for dinner, without walking a step since they travel by automobile, snowmobile and sleigh." There are good practice slopes right at the chalet so they can try out their snow legs before retiring if they wish, stated Mr. Creelman. Next morning, if they so decide, over a six-mile trail, which is beautiful scenically, they get into Trappers' Camp which is about 7,000 feet altitude and right at timberline, he said, with the best of alpine skiing right at the front door. "Here the snow conditions are incomparable, fast powder snow covering open runs two miles long," stated Mr. Creelman. "Everywhere a skier looks he sees huge snowfields some dotted with evergreens, while higher there are literally miles of undulating country boasting every type of ski run", he said. "For day trips this portion of the country is superb, generally finishing off with a two or three-mile run from the skyline to the very camp," concluded Mr. Creelman.

Ten different varieties of hard red spring wheat are officially recommended for use in various parts of the prairie provinces. As a result of extensive experimental work, it is known fairly well to what conditions each variety is adapted. In each of the three provinces, a Cereal Variety Zonation Committee is responsible for making official recommendations as to the varieties which should be grown in each district. These recommendations should be used as a general guide in making a choice. It is, of course, recognized that there are local districts to which varieties not officially recommended may be well adapted. However, it is wise to follow the official advice unless there is a very good reason for not doing so.

Seven varieties of oats, eleven of barley and three of flax are to be found on the recommended lists.

In order to assist government institutions in making the necessary information readily available to farmers, all grain buyers, of Live Elevator Companies, associated with the Agricultural Department have been provided with printed copies of cereal variety recommendations.

In order to secure maximum returns, it is necessary to use pure seed of the right variety.

So long as supplies last, copies of recommendations may be obtained from:

Manitoba—Extension Service, Department of Agriculture, Winnipeg.
Saskatchewan—Extension Department, University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon; Field Crops Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Regina.

Alberta—Field Crops Branch, Department of Agriculture, Edmonton.

GRAIN MITES

Toughness and Heating in first 3 feet of grain are signs of mite activity.

Act promptly if mites are present

Provide good ventilation for all bins.

Transfer grain from one bin to another.

Clean grain and burn screenings.

Examine regularly for further infestation.

If mites are present they will be found in the screenings obtained from sifting samples of grain. Use a magnifying glass to examine dust at house temperatures.

Further information may be obtained from the District Agriculturalist, Local Elevator Agent, Dominion Entomological Branch, Lethbridge, or the Field Crops Commissioner, Edmonton.
